

Five Netflix Movies Based on Books!
Contributed by Marta Silvagnoli

1. The Boy in the Striped Pajamas 2008 (Holocaust Fiction, John Boyne, 2006)

**Available at the Navy Digital Library/Overdrive

The Boy in the Striped Pajamas is about a German family that moved from Berlin to Poland, and lived outside of a concentration camp, where the father, an SS officer, was its new Commandant. His nine-year-old son Bruno became friends with an imprisoned boy named Shmuel on the other side of the fence near the family's home. Bruno brings food to him and sneaks into the camp to help Shmuel find his father.

2. The Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society 2018 (Historical Fiction, Mary Ann Shaffer and Annie Barrows, 2008) **Available at the Navy Digital Library/Overdrive

This is a story about a book club formed in Guernsey during the WWII German occupation. Juliet Ashton, the main character and an author, leaves London on a book tour across England. By chance, she receives a letter from a total stranger who lives in Guernsey who was seeking additional books by an author named Charles Lamb. Juliet sends the requester more books by Lamb and asks the writer about the literary society she belonged to and began corresponding with its members. Juliet later travels to Guernsey to interview members and do research on life under occupation WWII. Readers especially like the witty exchanges between the book's characters.

3. Brain on Fire 2016 (Autobiography/Memoir, Susannah Cahalan, 2012) **Available at the Navy Digital Library/Overdrive

Susannah Cahalan, a journalist at the New York Post, is plagued by voices in her head, seizures, and violent episodes, due to a rare form of encephalitis. The book describes her illness and recovery.

4. The talented Mr. Ripley 1999 (Fiction, Patricia Highsmith, 1955) **Available at the Navy Digital Library/Overdrive

The Talented Mr. Ripley is a 1955 psychological thriller novel by Patricia Highsmith. About the life of a handsome sociopath and his violent behaviors. **Available at the Navy Digital Library/Overdrive

5. Escape from Mr. Lemoncello's Library (Juvenile Fiction, Chris Grabenstein, 2017) **Available at the Navy Digital Library/Overdrive

A game designer builds a library full of traps for a group of kids who play an elaborate scavenger hunt.